HOUSE MAY KILL INDUSTRY RIDER IN DRAFT BILL

Public Fear Of Impending Dictatorship Cited By Kentucky Solon

BUSINESS IS COOPERATING

Backers Begin To Line Up Support To Pass Act In Next Week

WASHINGTON, August 31—The draft-industry "rider" attached to the conscription bill in the senate may be killed in the house to allay public fear of impending military dictatorship, it was indicated today.

Chairman May (D) Kentucky of the house military affairs committee predicted that the amendments will be rejected by his committee Tuesday.

"I do not think the committee will approve the amendment," May said. "If anything is reported, I think it will be modified so that it will not be so vicious.

"If the amendment is adopted it would help those who are trying to frighten the people into believing that the selective service bill is a dictatorship move.

"The Council of National Defense says industry is cooperating. The government now has vast power under other defense bills to enforce cooperation, if necessary."

The denunciation of the Overton-Russell amendment by Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie as paving the way for dictatorship, admittedly spurred a partisan drive among Democrats to adopt it.

Republicans Split, Too

Republicans, as well as Democrats, were divided on the issue, and President Roosevelt's assertion that Willkie is playing politics in challenging him to debate the issue forecast injection of national politics in the draft bill fight when it opens in the house on Tuesday.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders conceded that if the amendment reaches the house floor it will be adopted. Chief likelihood of killing it, apparently, lay in the military affairs committee. Under house rules, parliamentarians said, the amendment cannot be considered on the floor if the committee rejects it.

Backers of the house draft bill, which authorizes training of 1,000,000 men from 21 to 44, inclusive, began a drive to line up votes of wavering members for the show-down next week.

Chief opposition came from mid-western and northwestern states, with Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota delegations apparently preponderantly against conscription.

"Prelude To War"

Rep. Shannon (D) Missouri, foe of the measure, declared that the conscription bill "is a prelude to war."

"There is more hysteria connected with this bill than with the war."

WASHINGTON, August 31—Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, declared today that "the battle of Britain is won."

In an informal talk with newspapermen, he explained that he meant that Adolf Hitler's bombers, despite their attacks in waves of hundreds, definitely had been unable to smash British air power to pave the way for an invasion this fall.

"Germany has only a fortnight more in which to invade us," the ambassador said. "Then it will be too late."

By that he meant that the stormy waters of the English Channel, shrouded in fog after about September 15, would become an almost impossible feat for an army of invasion.

Meanwhile, Lord Lothian said, British bombers have been attacking German military and industrial centers almost nightly in waves of 150 or more. These raids, he said, have not been publicized to the extent of the Nazi bombing attacks on Great Britain, but they have been most effective in destroying German production centers.

British preparations for a mass German invasion, the ambassador added, are becoming stronger with each day that passes.

Million, Half Ready

At the present time, he said, Great Britain has more than 1,500,000 men under arms. He estimated that the most Germany could hope to land, even if defenses of the English Channel fleet and air corps were overcome, would be 200,000 or 300,000, and that they would be faced with an army many times their size.

"Some of us are even tempted to hope at times," Lothian said with a laugh, "that they will try it."

The ambassador expressed the opinion that the German troops tied up in the French and Belgian areas of occupation were becoming restless and bored, resulting in a declining morale.

Enemy Might One

If the Germans do not invade now, he said, and the war is carried out until next spring, Hitler's troops will find themselves facing an enemy far stronger than now.

Lothian, who talked with newspapermen following a call on Secretary of State Cordell Hull, declined to discuss the current negotiations for the acquisition by the United States of British naval bases. The administration has put a seal of silence on this subject.

Although he would not comment, he was obviously displeased over the activities here of Sir George Paish, British economist, who was quoted by Senator Wheeler (D) Montana as saying that he had come here to get America "into the war." Lord Lothian confirmed the fact that the British government has asked Sir George to return at once to London.

JOY REIGNS AS BUDAPEST HEARS AXIS' DECISION

BUDAPEST, August 31—Demonstrations of joy were held in Budapest today in celebration of the agreement under which Romania turned over some 50,000 kilometers of Transylvania to Hungary, which lost Transylvania after the World War.

The agreement under which the transfer was arranged was reached at a meeting at Vienna among the foreign ministers of Germany, Italy, Hungary and Romania.

Meanwhile, reports from Sofia said newspapers there reported that Romania and Bulgaria have reached an agreement regarding Bulgarian claims on South Dobruja. Under this accord, it was reported, South Dobruja will be returned to Bulgaria and the former 1912 Romanian-Bulgarian boundary established.

BUCHAREST, August 31—The Romanian crown council met for three hours today to hear details of the Vienna decision calling for transfer of part of Transylvania from Romania to Hungary.

Premier Ion Gigurtu declared Italy and Germany, who dictated the decision, had granted a guarantee of the new Romanian frontier.

After hearing the Vienna delegation report on the conference at the crown council meeting, King Carol issued a proclamation stating:

"Romania had to choose between saving its national existence or its possible disappearance."

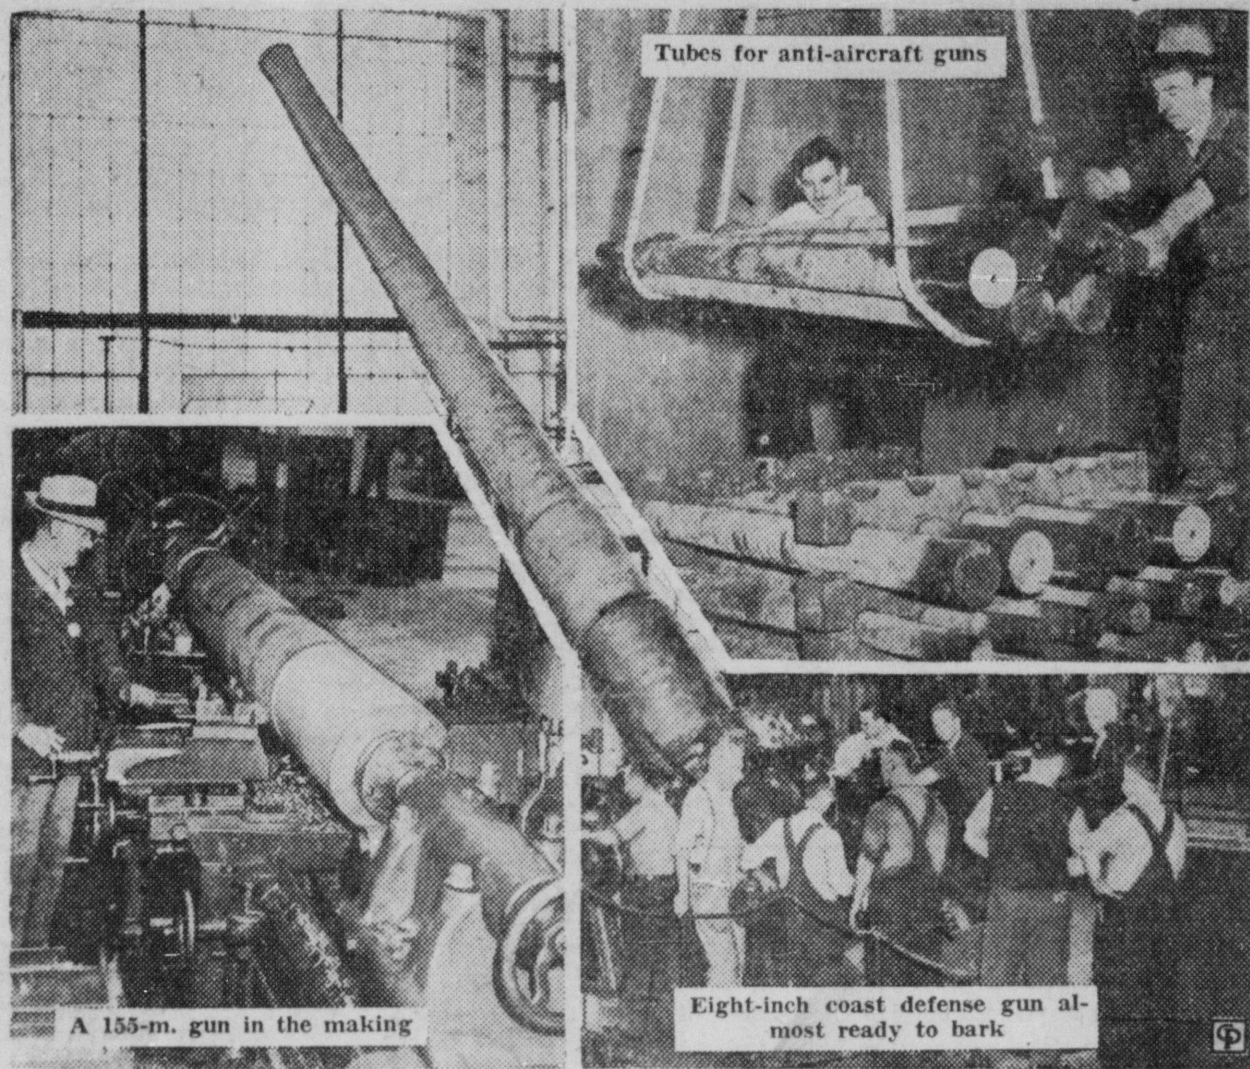

IRONTON CALLS OFF GRID TILTS; ILLNESS BLAMED

COLUMBUS, August 31 — Dr. R. H. Markwith, health director, was advised today that Ironton High School officials had cancelled the first two games on the school's football schedule as a precaution against the spread of infantile paralysis. Games against Catlettsburg on September 13 and at Huntington East High on September 20 were called off.

Ironton school openings also have been postponed, Markwith said.

Forty-one cases of the disease have been reported in Lawrence and Scioto County since June 10.

Arsenal Turns Out Loud-Voiced Guns for Army

WITH its machinery whirring 24 hours a day, the Watertown, Mass., arsenal keeps a force of 2,500 men busy turning out the big anti-aircraft, coast defense and field guns for the United States army's rejuvenation and enlargement program. To start with, the guns are solid steel cylinders such as those in the picture at upper right. Then they are turned on a lathe, lower left, and bored before they emerge as the finished weapon, center, and are sent to army fortresses and bases.

More Motorists Cited For Traffic Violations

Two Court Street speeders were arrested Friday night, as city police continued their drive to stop fast driving on Main and Court Streets.

"Slim" Foster, Columbus, was arrested at 9:45 p. m. for traveling 50 miles an hour on North Court Street. He posted a bond for appearance in traffic court at 7:30 Saturday.

SCARLET DAWN, BRAEBURN FARM FOAL, IS WINNER

Scarlet Dawn, chestnut filly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Adkins of Braeburn Stock Farm, Pickaway Township, won the $500 grand championship stake for foals of 1940 at the Ohio State Fair Friday afternoon, the first time in several years that an Ohio foal has won the grand championship at the fair. Kentucky horsemen have been dominating this class.

Scarlet Dawn was foaled in May at the Braeburn farm, its sire being Oklahoma Peavine and its dam the Painted Doll.

This is the second foal of the Adkins mare to place high in the grand championship saddle foal stake. In 1936 The Painted Doll foaled a stallion colt which was first in the stallion class, but was third in the sweepstakes to two Kentucky fillies.

Scarlet Dawn was handled by Gene Hall, son of Russell Hall, manager of Braeburn Farm, and Mr. Adkins.

The reserve championship in the foal stake went to Cocktail Hour, a bay stallion colt owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Stevens of Middletown.

Scarlet Dawn also won the class for filly foals shown in hand and the class for saddle bred brood mare and foal was won by The Painted Doll and Scarlet Dawn. There were seven brood mares and foals shown and seven weanling colts in the stake.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, August 31—After a posse of more than 100 peace officers had trapped him in a thicket near Malaga, 33-year-old Russel Gibbons, London Prison farm fugitive, was held in Belmont County jail today.

When Gibbons took refuge in a rock pile, the posse armed with rifles and corn cutters, fired several shots and then stormed the thicket, Deputy Sheriff Wayne Street declared. Gibbons was found unconscious from exhaustion, the deputy said.

Gibbons, who escaped from London in June, was sentenced from Belmont County for stealing hams,

Berlin Says Flyers Miss Military Objectives

ONE HITS PORT

High Explosive And Incendiary Shells Are Tossed

BERLIN, August 31—British bombs crashed in the center of Berlin during a prolonged raid by waves of Royal Air Force planes today, one missile crashing into the Berlin fire department headquarters only a few blocks from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's chancellery in the Wilhelmstrasse.

This bomb smashed the building's windows and shattered its concrete floor, but no other structures which could be termed military objectives suffered in the attack. Residential areas suffered most of the damage.

It was the second bombing raid Berlin has experienced since the war began. The air raid alarm sounded at 1:40 a. m. and the all clear signal at 3:15 a. m.

The British raiders dropped bombs on almost the same southeastern section of the capital that was hit in the raid on Thursday, when bombs fell on Kottbusser-Strasse.

As the bombs fell, flames and smoke cast a red glow on the night sky.

German officials said the bombers showed a lack of good aim but nevertheless got closer to military objectives and caused some minor damage to the city.

Hundred pound bombs dropped from the British planes at a height of 12,000 feet exploded with loud detonations. They looked sinister as they fell, outlined by the beams of defense searchlights.

German authorities said they had caused no vital damage to Berlin, except to rob Berliners of their sleep.

An official communique stated: "Several enemy planes passed over Berlin and dropped numerous incendiary and high explosive bombs on the inner city, causing attic fires in residential and public buildings.

"The planes did not attack military objectives. Three civilians were seriously injured and three were slightly hurt."

European Bulletins

ROME—Britain and France must pay the bill for damage caused by the European war, Relazioni Internazionali, Italian foreign office organ, said today. "The damage done by the war to European civilization must be paid by England. She must be driven out of Africa," the publication stated. "France, which shares equal responsibility, must pay a big bill."

ROME—Italian bombing raids against British forces in Africa and the Red Sea were announced today by the military bulletin, which stated: "Our aviation bombed enemy mechanized equipment in the zone of Darelhambra beyond the Cyrenaican frontier. Our air formations also bombed and hit an enemy cruiser in the Red Sea."

NEW YORK—Records of the German Library of Information were surrendered today to Stephen W. Birmingham, chief investigator here of the Dies Committee investigating un-American activities. Dr. Matthias Schmitz, director of the library who previously denied that the library indulged in any political activities, was not available for comment on the action.

LONDON—German claims that the body of a girl R. A. F. pilot had been washed ashore on the west coast of Schleswig-Holstein were termed "piffle" in an official British statement today. "It is all nonsense," this announcement said. "The Royal Air Force used no women for operational flying" (Continued on Page Eight)

DISABLED PLANE TAKEN FROM SEA BY COAST BOAT

WASHINGTON, August 31—The U. S. coastguard reported today that the coastguard cutter Pandora was towing a disabled Pan American plane into Key West, Fla., after the flying boat was forced down 28 miles at sea last night.

It was not known in Washington how many persons were aboard the airplane.

According to the coastguard, another Pan American plane took off as soon as the first ship was reported down. The second plane hovered over the scene and helped direct coastguard rescue operations.

MAN'S SECOND SUICIDE ATTEMPT IS SUCCESSFUL

CINCINNATI, August 31 — Shortly after he had been rescued from the Ohio River, Ora Mobley, 25, of Cincinnati, made good a second suicide attempt and drowned as wharf workers attempted to reach his side. Floyd McIntosh, a companion, told police he pulled Mobley from the river once but the latter broke away from him a short time later and leaped into the water.

Londoners Flee As Three Warnings Fill Air

R. A. F. IN ACTION

Shrapnel From Big Guns Pours In City Streets

LONDON, August 31—Three more air raid warnings in rapid succession kept Londoners popping in and out of their shelters today as Nazi Germany's air war on the British Isles reached its crescendo.

More than 300 Nazi bombers and fighters were hurled into the attack during a seven-hour raid last night and this morning in which many bombs were dropped in the London area causing considerable damage, particularly in the densely-crowded East Ham district along the Thames.

At 1:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. Circleville time), unofficial reports said that 16 of the raiders had been shot down, most of them along the southeast coast. This sector once again bore the brunt of the assault as the attackers swarmed in across the channel and frequently jettisoned their bombs in wild flights home.

While the third alarm was sounding—the 27th London has known since the outbreak of war—explosions were audible to watchers in the capital.

They were so far distant, however, that observers could not tell whether they came from bombs or anti-aircraft fire.

Spectators in the outskirts of London heard the drone of German planes flying at a great height just before the 27th alarm sounded. Bursts of machine-gun fire indicated they were being engaged by R. A. F. fighters.

One brief air battle was reported during which several bomb explosions were heard, but the raiders in this group were driven off in half a minute.

Shrapnel Fills Streets

Hour after hour as the day progressed, swarms of German planes crossed the southeast coast and attempted to batter their way into London. The R. A. F. was in the air constantly, while anti-aircraft fire kept up a terrific barrage. Spent cartridges and shrapnel fell like hail in the streets.

The second alarm, the sixth since noon yesterday and the twenty-sixth since the war began, sounded in the London area at 10:40 a. m. (4:40 a. m. EST). The all-clear sounded at 11:22 a. m. (5:22 a. m. EST)

DISPUTE OVER WPA CHECK TAKES TWO INTO COURT

John Morgan, of Darbyville, and his son Charles, were both in County Jail Saturday on assault and battery charges, which each filed against the other in Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges' court Friday night following their arrest by Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver.

John Morgan charged his son with assault and battery, while Charles claimed that his father threatened to strike him with a heavy wet broom, saying "I'll kill you."

Each was fined $25 and costs. Justice Hedges said the argument developed over the possession of a WPA check.

Snead Remains As Favorite In P.G.A. Tourney

Hillbilly Puts Out Gene Sarazen In Great Rally; Tangles With McSpaden; Nelson, Guldahl Meet In Remaining Match at Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 31 — The members of the old guard have sighed, staggered, breathed their last and passed on, leaving today's 36-hole semi-finals in the National Professional Golf championship to four latter day stars, who belted away for the right to play tomorrow's final for a title that must go to a new champion. So much has happened with such extreme rapidity in the last few hours that this one inevitably will be recalled as the year of the big upsets, but Samuel Jackson Snead still was the favorite, just as he has been all along.

DODGERS LEAVE; CUBS ARRIVE TO MEET CHAMPIONS

CINCINNATI, August 31—"Hot Potato" Hamlin and the Brooklyn Dodgers bid farewell to the west today, certain they would have been in the thick of the pennant battle in the National Loop if injuries hadn't battered their ranks.

The Brooklynites proved they weren't quitting yesterday by triumphing the Cincinnati Reds, 6-2, behind Hamlin's steady hurling. The Rhinelanders connected for ten hits from the offerings of the "Hot Potato" but when runners were in bases he was tighter than a clam.

Gene Thompson was the victim of the Dodger uprising. He was pulled from the mound in the seventh with the Durocher lads out in front 4-2. Joe Eggs was nipped for three hits and two runs in the eighth as the second-place team clinched the tilt.

Frank McCormick's eighteenth home run of the season accounted for one of the Reds' runs. Bucky Walters will be the Red hurler today as the Chicago Cubs come to town for a three-game series in two days.

GOVERNOR'S CUP GOES TO HORSE DRIVEN BY SHORT

COLUMBUS, August 31 — Dr. H. M. Marshall, of Urbana, today possessed the coveted Governor's Cup despite the rain that washed out the final day of harness racing at the 90th annual Ohio State Fair.

Under rules of the U. S. Racing Association, Marshall was awarded the Governor's cup because his horse, Modern Boy, raced the fastest heat in Thursday night's two heats. Modern Boy clipped a tenth of a second from the old track record in recording a 2:06 mile with Harry Short at the reins. The state fair's racing program failed to see one complete program carried through to completion as rain and a heavy track forced postponements each day.

Cleveland Excited Over Indians' Pennant Prospects; Officials Preparing for First World Series Since 1920

CLEVELAND, August 31 — While Cleveland's hard-boiled baseball fans still keep their fingers crossed, and hope for the best in the way of a pennant for the Tribe, city officials believe the American League pennant race is all over but the shouting and are preparing for the first world series in 20 years.

And this in spite of the disastrous eastern invasion of Oscar Vitt's aggregation, which included four straight losses.

The pennant fever has spread even though Clevelanders are accustomed to watching an Indian team climb to the heights and then sink rapidly. Friction between Manager Vitt and the players, which came to a head in open rebellion several weeks back and then was canned for future reference, still is being reported but pennant talk rises louder on every street corner.

City officials have begun work on a new pedestrian ramp to handle what is expected to be the largest world series crowds in history if and when the games are on the lake front. While the stadium seats but 75,000, additional seats could be installed to accommodate crowds approximately 100,000, a mark considerably over any previous blue ribbon classic outpouring.

Snead, a Virginia rustic who has been promising for so long only to fail in major championships, except the Canadian Open which he won last week in a play-off with McSpaden; his golfing etiquette so bad that yesterday he frequently was publicly chided by Gene Sarazen, whom he beat with a sensational finish, one up. He can slug and he can win. What's more, he can rally and win when all is lost, contrary to his past record. He proved it yesterday.

McSpaden, a sharp-faced native of Kansas, who seemed to be undecided as to whether his victory Thursday over Walter Hagen called for jubilation or anguish. Although he played hard and won eagerly, he glowed quite obviously when Hagen complimented him on some of his shots, and he was hot yesterday in defeating Paul Runyan, 8 and 6.

Nelson, a native of Texas who won the National Open last year, and missed winning this event by the margin of one up in 37 holes in a final match with Henry Picard. Nelson is a slender, babyish looking guy who is notorious for his gameness in the clutch, not that he had to show any yesterday in eliminating Eddie Kirk, four up.

Guldahl, the 1937 and 1938 open champion; a tall, stoop-shouldered fellow with the hips of a dowager and a shaggy head that shakes down stray wisps of wavy hair every time he lays into a shot. He's a good, tough all-around guy and makes of his match with Nelson an all-Texas affair. But he wouldn't mind whipping another Texan. He took care of Ben Hogan yesterday, 3 and 2.

The lineup, therefore is one in which no former champion of this event will be involved, with the passing of Sarazen and Runyan yesterday. They followed on the heels of the defending champion, Picard, and the medalist, Dick Metz, who didn't even last until yesterday.

Snead, longest hitter in the tournament and possibly the best all around shot maker, is given to going into an attack of jitters without notice, but he probably will escape now. He got by Sarazen with a terrific last nine finish where he came from three down, and Runyan, who beat him 8 and 7 in 1938 in the final of this event, is out of it now. He hasn't got much to worry about.

Foremost among his chores now is ticket distribution. His problem is to pacify approximately 4,000 association stockholders who have a preference on seats for the annual football game, and, at the same time, hold sufficient pasteboards in reserve to satisfy the paying public.

Thousands of requests for tickets already have been received, Goldberg said and followed through with the prediction more than 70,000 spectators would view the bowl battle.

One order for tickets came from as far away as the West Indies, according to Goldberg.

So, come the blasts of winter, about all left for Goldberg and his aides to do is select and secure the services of the two best football teams he can find for the New Year's Day gridiron duel.

A general contractor by profession, Goldberg waxes enthusiastic on matters of sport and appears perfectly at home in his new role. This is his first year as president of the association. He serves without remuneration like all other officers of the group.

Goldberg considers himself an ideal "grandstand quarterback," pointing out that his best athletic efforts at Tulane University advanced him no farther than the Greenie scrub squad.

Between intercollegiate boxing matches December 27 and the football battle January 1, Goldberg has arranged the following card: December 28-31—The nation's top tennis talent will be exhibited in tournament play.

December 28—Crack Gulf Coast skippers sail and the South's best shell crews match strokes on choppy Lake Ponchartraine.

December 29—The fastest humans on two legs engage each other and Time in the Sugar Bowl track meet.

December 30—Already on the dotted line for a basketball game are the quintettes from the University of Indiana, national intercollegiate champs, and from the University of Kentucky, crown win, they will be among the most unpopular of all loop champions. This is because of their wigwag difficulties which have earned for them the brand of "cry babies" in other cities and brought down considerable criticism from baseball fans in general.

The Tribe's chances are good. The team is the favorite at the moment.

A great pitching staff, the best in the league, plus some sparkling infield play by a rookie second base combination, are given as the big reasons for the Indian showing this year.

In Bobby Feller, youthful speedball ace, the Tribe has the outstanding pitcher in baseball today. In Al Milnar and Al Smith they have two of the five leading twirlers in the circuit.

The rookies, Ray Mack at second and Lou Boudreau at short, are ranked high among major league infielders although they are up for their first full season. Rolfe Hemsley's catching has been an inspiration all year. The Indian batting is nothing to brag about.

Feller Big Star

One thing is certain about the pennant outcome. If the Indians but a few of the boys are over the .300 mark.

It's been 20 years since the Cleveland baseball team has won a pennant. That was in 1920 when Tim Lincecum piloted the team to a league victory and then a world series triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Some old time fans may recall the Cleveland lineup of those days. The pitching stars were Stan Coveleske, Guy Morton and Jim Bagby. The Tribe had a great shortstop in Ray Chapman, but shortly before the season ended he was killed in an accident involving a thrown ball by Carl Mays. Joey Sewell, a rookie, was brought up. Bill Wamby was the second baseman. Grane and Elmer Smith were outfielders with Speaker. Steve O'Neill was the catcher.

Most of the Tribe's remaining games are at home. A few are on the road. Experts look to the last few days of the season when the Detroit club engages the Indians in what may easily be the world series of the American league.

Reds Almost In; Indians Have Tough Row To Hoe

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, August 31—Even the most rabid Dodger fan probably would concede today that you would be reasonably safe in ordering your world series tickets at Cincinnati.

But few fans anywhere outside Cleveland will grant you the same safety in buying tickets to see the Indians play in the fall classic.

The Reds today are 7½ games in front of the Dodgers and with only 33 more left to play they should breeze in. But the Indians hold no such comfortable margin. They are only two and one half games in front of the Tigers and but five ahead of the aroused Yankees, who have won 17 of their last 20 games, and are playing in the manner that brought them four straight pennants and as many world series in the last four years.

Despite the fact that they have still to make one more swing through the west, the schedule favors the Yanks rather than the Tigers or Indians.

Yanks Meet Weak Clubs
The Yanks have only two games left with Cleveland, three with Detroit, four with Boston and three with Chicago or a total of 12 with strong clubs. But they have 21 left to play with the last three clubs as follows: Washington 12, St. Louis four and Philadelphia five.

The Indians' remaining set-up is as follows: New York 2, Detroit 9, Boston 3, Chicago 5, Washington 3, St. Louis 4 and Philadelphia 5.

The Tigers have the following to play: New York 3, Cleveland 9, Boston 2, Chicago 5, Washington 3, St. Louis 4 and Philadelphia 4.

Thus it will be noted that whereas the Yanks have only 12 games left with strong clubs and 21 with the pushovers the Indians have 19 left with the powerhouses and only 12 with the weak ones while the Tigers have 19 remaining with the tough ones and only 11 with the weaker brethren.

Please note those nine games still unplayed between the Tigers and Indians. Those games might send the world series into Cleveland.

RED AND BLACK SQUAD TO FACE HEAVY SESSIONS

Seven Hard Drills Remain For Roy Black's Boys Before First Game

Only seven practice sessions stand between Coach Roy Black's Tiger varsity and its first game with Columbus Holy Rosary, September 13, and much work remains to be done. The squad gets back to work next Tuesday and will practice Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The following week school starts with drills to be staged Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with the usual light signal practice to be arranged for the eve before the lidlifter.

Two weeks of drills are behind the squad, but several of the veterans around whom the team this year will be built have not been able to report for practice and for other reasons. The end positions are uncertain, and so is one of the guard spots. Neither halfback position has been decided yet, because of injuries and delays in reporting.

Center, handled by Bob Brown; the tackle, filled by Russ Liston and John Sabine; quarterback, occupied by Frank Geib, and fullback, taken care of by Joe Staley, appear to be certainties, but doubt exists concerning the starters in the other positions. Clark Martin will take one guard spot despite the fact that he has not been able to practice regularly because of work. Working for a dairy, he has been kept busy with activity at the campground, but since Sunday ends that meeting Martin is expected to get the full advantage of all remaining drills. The other guard spot rests between Jack Crawford and Nolan Sims, both being capable, and both being in condition after diligent practicing.

End Guess Futile
A guess concerning the ends would be futile. Dud Smallwood, brilliant sophomore who has been working like a beaver to make the first team, seems like a certain starter, but the other flank is a tossup between Jim Carr, George Trego and Paul Jackson, the next few drills to decide Coach Black's choice for the wing.

Marvin Jenkins, left halfback for three years, has been working and has not been able to don the mole skins as yet, but he has promised the Tiger mentor he will be ready when the whistle sounds for the first kickoff. The backfield needs Jenkins' speed to help overcome the loss of mercury-footed Harold Smith. Carl Eby was being used in the left half spot in Jenkins' absence, but he suffered a severely sprained ankle and is not able to drill. Since that time

Jim Moorehead has been handling the position in good style.

Normie Anderson, who gained about 20 pounds during the summer, looks like the best bet for the right half post. Anderson weighs over 180 pounds now and has been hitting hard on the offensive and defensively, too.

When Jenkins gets out it is probable that Eby and Anderson will divide the right-half duties.

Practice sessions that have taken place in the last two weeks are expected to look like pink tea parties in comparison with those in store for the Red and Black squad starting next week. The lads who show the greatest willingness to work are those on whom the smiles of the coach are expected to fall from now until the start of the season.

SOX HIT RAPID BOBBY 12 TIMES, BUT LOSE GAME

CHICAGO, August 31 — The Cleveland Indians today held their 13th victory in 17 games with their favorite cousins, the Chicago White Sox.

In a night game at Comiskey Park the Tribe beat the Sox 4 and 2, although Bobby Feller gave up 12 hits while Thornton (Lefty) Lee, erstwhile Indian jinx, allowed eight. One of those hits, however, was a home run by Jeff Heath, with Hal Trosky and Lou Boudreau on the paths ahead of him in the first inning.

Heath, who definitely has regained his batting stride, also scored the Indians' fourth run in the sixth when he led off with a single and went around the bases on Ken Keltner's sacrifice. Ray Mack's scratch hit and Rolfe Hemsley's long fly.

One of the White Sox home runs was Moose Solters' homer in the fourth and the other came in the sixth on singles by Taft Wright, Mike Tresh and Bud Kennedy.

Today's game was another battle of left-handed Smiths, with Al hurling for the Tribe and Edgar pitching for the Sox. In two previous games Al has won, the last time with a one-hitter.

BEEES KEEP MILLER

CHICAGO, August 31 — All chances that the Chicago Cubs would acquire Shortstop Eddie Miller from the Boston Bees appeared to have disappeared today. Manager Casey Stengel of the Bees revealed before leaving Chicago yesterday that the oft-rumored deal for Miller is "definitely out."

Catherine Beecher, sister of Henry Ward Beecher and Harriet Beecher Stowe, introduced the study of homemaking arts and sciences into schools. Miss Beecher started her teaching career in 1822.

Camp Officials Preparing to Handle Greatest Crowd Of Annual Meeting

Question Of Quarters To Accommodate Throng Important One

Camp ground officials were preparing the Mount of Praise camp grounds on East Ohio Street Saturday for record week-end crowd. Officials generally believed that the crowd would surpass that of last week-end, when 15,000 persons visited the grounds.

The seven campground cooks and 75 volunteer workers were buying additional foodstuffs Saturday with the expectation that the dining rooms would be crowded.

With no dormitory space available, the problem of providing adequate shelter for the final week-end visitors again became vital. Camp officials reported that temporary beds would be erected in some of the buildings, as was the case last week-end. Many visitors are expected to sleep in their cars.

Public services Saturday night will be under the direction of the Rev. R. G. Flexon. Sunday morning services will begin at 10:30 a. m. with T. M. Anderson presiding, with the Rev. Flexon again taking charge during the Sunday afternoon session, beginning at 2 p. m. The Rev. C. E. Tike will have charge of the closing service Sunday night, beginning at 7:30.

"The Church" will be the subject of the sermon during the worship service. Mrs. Clark Will, director of the choir, will sing a soprano solo, "Out of the Deep," by Martin. Numbers by the organist, Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, include "Old Refrain" by Kreisler, "Song Without Words" by Mendelssohn and "Triumphal March" by Verdi.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Psalms 103, 107.

"Oh give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth forever."

The redeemed wandered in the wilderness; hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them.

Then they cried unto the Lord, and He delivered them out of their distresses.

He led them forth that they might go to a city of habitation. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 103:2)

KEEP THE LIGHTS BURNING

GREAT war-makers have not always been deadly. They may have fought destructive battles and killed many of their foes; but except for abnormal brutes like Genghis Khan and Attila, they did not kill merely from the lust of slaughter. Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar and Napoleon had many constructive things to their credit. Particularly they did not try to exterminate the able and gifted members of the nations they fought. They rather sought to preserve such people, for their own glory if for no better reason.

But Nazism changes all this. "When Adolf Hitler enters a country," observes the New York Times, "every man and woman in that country who has been conspicuous for the love of liberty, for originality of thought, or for a dispassionate quest for truth—in fact, every significant creative individual—is at once in danger. Hitler has an aboriginal distrust of that sort of person. They do not fit into his new order."

"Democracies, on the other hand, need and should welcome these richly endowed human types. It is these facts, even more than the humanitarian appeal, that lend force to the campaign now being carried on by the Emerson Rescue Committee to aid in the evacuation of European intellectuals now under the Nazi ban. When we welcome these artists, poets, scientists, teachers, we help men and women who are in grievous trouble, but in the end we will benefit ourselves more than them. The torch of civilization burns low in Europe. Let it burn brighter here."

PRISON IMPROVEMENT

AMERICANS have a great and growing appreciation for "army efficiency" as frequently revealed in civil as well as military activities. It has come to be almost axiomatic, if there is a specially tough public job of any kind to be done, to get an Army man to do it.

Ohio has a current exhibit along this line worth calling attention to. The state penitentiary was in bad shape, overcrowded and badly handled and shot through with vice and futility. Brigadier General Frank D. Henderson, a veteran "trouble man" who, among various public jobs, has been supervisor of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, was picked to straighten out the prison.

That was a year ago. Investigators now report immense improvement. Organization and personnel have been overhauled. Morale is up. New industries have been installed, prisoners' capacities are studied and applied, guards are trained by experts, a department of industrial arts is humming, the prison court system is revised and humanized, interesting or

GIFFORD PINCHOT TO BOLT GOP

WASHINGTON—The GOP soon will get a taste of bolting from its own ranks. Gifford Pinchot, twice Republican governor of Pennsylvania, will "take a walk" in favor of President Roosevelt as against Wendell Willkie.

The bolt will be particularly interesting because a few years ago Pinchot had a personal squabble with the White House, and only a few months ago clashed bitterly with Secretary Harold Ickes over his defense of Richard A. Ballinger, member of the Taft cabinet who was forced to resign because of charges involving the sale of government land.

In those days Pinchot played a leading role in the ousting of Ballinger, but Ickes completely exonerated his predecessor and denounced Pinchot.

Now, Pinchot plans to campaign in Pennsylvania for the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket. His vivacious, titian-haired wife, who is active in labor circles, already is working for the New Deal.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL HABITS

There was a lot of ribbing on both sides when Henry Wallace met the press for the last time before resigning as Secretary of Agriculture.

"Mr. Secretary," said Ted Alford of The Kansas City Star, "one of my cattle-men out home wants to know if it's true you don't eat meat."

Wallace grinned. "If it won't alienate the Jewish vote, I confess I even eat pork." Then he added, "I've experimented with as many as fifty different diets."

Then Alford changed the subject and nearly broke up the meeting. "Mr. Secretary, when elected Vice President, will you strike a blow for liberty?"

NOTE—"Let's strike a blow for liberty" is the invitation of Vice President Garner when asking friends to gather round his private refrigerator in the Capitol.

TIN FOR AMERICA

The Capital is full of tin men. Patino is here from Paris, and Hochschild from Bolivia. Pierce has arrived from Liverpool and Van den Broeke from Amsterdam. National Lead is represented, and the Grace Lines, and Aramayo; while an expert is on his way from the Mineral Bank of Bolivia.

It is a matter of moment when these men come to Washington. They are Dutch, British, Bolivian only in name. Actually, they are men of all countries. Simon Patino is a Bolivian who lives in France and controls the great tin smelters of England plus tin mines in Bolivia. Mauricio Hochschild is an Argentine of Dutch descent who lives in Bolivia and aspires to unseat Patino from the tin throne of the world.

But today they are all willing to be Americans. They see that international tin control is cracking, and that Uncle Sam, who consumes more refined tin than all the rest of the world, means to smelt his own at last. The tin men have come (Continued on Page Six) at least tolerable activity has replaced demoralizing idleness. And the prisoners like it better.

Health No. 1 School Aid

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SUCCESS of a child in school is based on his physical soundness. Our whole system of education is based on seeing and hearing. A child with a considerable degree of failure in vision or hearing may have got by during his young years of play, but these become serious handicaps when he enters school. The defect may be entirely unsuspected. In one community in one year 66,000 children were found to have defective vision and 17,000 defective hearing.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Other defects while not so disabling should receive consideration. The child who is a mouth-breather and is subject to chronic colds cannot concentrate as successfully as his healthy school-mates. At this time of year the nose and throat surgeons are busily engaged in working on adenoids and tonsils so as to correct the defects resulting from mouth breathing. The teeth should be examined and put in good condition—mouth breathing may result in bad occlusion of the teeth and malformed teeth may tend to keep a child a mouth-breather. Eleven per cent of children are found to be either mouth-breathers or to have abscessed teeth, the first year they enter school.

Undernourishment Common All the defects mentioned are of a remediable nature and need not hamper a child's progress forever.

Undernourishment is found in a greater or less degree in nearly a third of all first year school children. In most cases this is due to ignorance of the use of protective foods at home. It is so easy nowadays to get in the habit of eating processed foods, especially in a household where the cook and housekeeper goes to town to work, as well. School teachers tell one that hundreds of children come to school having had an insufficient breakfast or one that represents internal starvation because mother and father both had to rush off to work. To provide breakfast out of a can or a box is much easier than getting fresh milk, fresh fruit, an egg and a good cooked cereal.

Posture is an indication of good health or bad health rather than a disease in itself. It may mean poor nourishment, the residue of rickets earlier, weak muscles from under-nutrition or bad postural habits. Schools have found an awakening conscience in these conditions in their pupils. They have a responsibility for the physical as well as the spiritual rehabilitation of their pupils. So in one form or another a physical examination of all first year school children is attempted pretty widely over the United States. The best plan would be for the parents to have their family physician make the examination; it would be more thorough and necessarily more intelligent than the examination made by the school physician or the school nurse. But whatever plan is used the general movement will inevitably lead to a higher standard of physical efficiency in the citizen of tomorrow.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. M. B.—"Is smoking harmful in Meniere's disease? Also is beer and alcohol harmful?"

Answer—I have looked up this question in several textbooks on ear disease and nervous disease and I find no prohibition against smoking expressed by the authors. Patients I remember with Meniere's disease have been too sick to ask about it. When you are so dizzy you have to lie down on the bed, order the room to be darkened, shut off the telephone and all other noises, and hang on to the head of the bed because you are spinning around so hard, you are not likely to think of taking a smoke. Beer and alcohol make well people dizzy, so they are not advised.

L. B. A.—"Please advise me what foods to eat in a bad case of anemia? I am 50 years old."

Answer—Liver, half a pound a day, if the anemia is of the Addisonian type (ask your doctor to find out about this), spinach and eggs for iron.

C. R.—"Will you please tell me a list of places in the United States with climate most favorable to patients suffering from sinus infection? My son six years old is afflicted."

Answer—The dry, warm desert climates of New Mexico, Arizona, etc., are usually recommended. Six-years old, however, is very young for true sinus infection. Are you sure a post nasal obstruction, as from infected adenoids, is not the real cause?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet costs 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Emilie Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

BEFORE THE BLITZKRIEG

RELEASED BY
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by
RUPERT GRAYSON

READ THIS FIRST:

Returning from a nerve-racking assignment, Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, goes to Sleigher's Egyptian Ray-Bath, where he becomes interested in a mysterious stranger named Pullinger, who is wearing a tattooed Egyptian symbol. Pullinger is met by a beautiful flame-haired girl at the swimming pool in the bath. Gun calls another agent, Colin Prescott, to trail Pullinger.

CHAPTER EIGHT

AS PRESCOTT mingled with the passersby outside, Gun noticed, not without admiration, how he seemed to completely lose his identity among other people. An entirely inconspicuous figure, nobody even would glance at him twice, or remember afterward that they had seen him. An exceedingly useful trait on the part of a shadower.

Gun drank his coffee and stood up. The waiter bustled over and glanced at "Cotton" Prescott's untouched cup.

"Your friend not thirsty after all, eh?"

"That," Gun replied, "is not a matter that I have known you long enough to discuss."

He paid and went unhurriedly out. Outside he stood for a moment looking about him. Prescott and the man he was trailing had, of course, disappeared.

Gun hailed a crawling taxi, and drove to Whitehall. But there he found that X was engaged for about three-quarters of an hour and could see no one. Gun left a message that he would be back, and went out again to kill time.

Meanwhile Prescott was following his quarry, and in the beginning found it a decidedly tiring business. But he was used to it.

They passed along the street, Pullinger on one side of it, and Prescott on the other. On the corner Pullinger paused and glanced at his wrist watch. Then he turned up the street that ran at right angles, and now his pace was a mere saunter.

"Got an appointment, and he's a bit early for it," was Prescott's inward comment.

He crossed the road and got on the same side as his quarry, increasing the distance between them by pausing to examine a shop window.

But as the man in front approached a corner, Prescott quickened his pace. He had known men to saunter around corners and then disappear completely, before this. Never lose sight of your man.

At the corner Pullinger paused and turned around to look back along the street. Prescott turned into the porch of a shop, which was also the entrance to a bank of offices. He did this naturally rather than suddenly, so that Pullinger failed to notice him. Shadowing is much a matter of timing.

It looked rather as though the fellow suspected he might be followed, and was making sure he wasn't, Prescott decided.

While with one eye he read the names of the various firms in residence, displayed in neat white-on-black on the walls, Prescott watched with the other the reflection of the man he was following in an opposite shop window. When the new non-reflector windows came into general use the task of the shadower would become a great deal more difficult.

The attitude of Pullinger was that of a careless loafer, killing time. But Prescott sensed that he was raking the street keenly with his eyes, and making a mental note of all the people he saw there. Then he turned again and still unhurriedly, disappeared around the corner.

Prescott emerged from his shelter, and, walking briskly, went straight across the street into which the other had turned. As he went he kept his eyes on it, and saw that Pullinger did not turn around and, consequently, could not have seen him. But, on the other side, he seemed to change his mind, and turned down the same street, but on the opposite pavement to the man he was following.

He saw Pullinger look at his watch again, and then quicken his pace. He turned into Shaftesbury avenue, with Prescott still tight on his trail.

"Making for Soho, for a dollar!" said Prescott to himself, as they crossed St. Giles' Circus.

He was right. His quarry led him along New Compton street, then left, right and left. Prescott still was on the opposite side of the street, but as Pullinger drew level with a public house he also crossed the road, paused to look at the name of the pub, and then recrossed and entered the saloon.

Prescott crossed also, and rolled past the doors of the saloon. As they opened to let someone out he saw that the place was fairly crowded inside. So, without further hesitation, he entered. Inside he behaved in his usual unobtrusive manner, for which he had a flair. It is doubtful if a single person in that bar noticed him at all—even the barmaid who served him with his bitter would have forgotten him a moment after.

But he observed much. Pullinger was talking to a girl. An interesting looking girl, Prescott decided. She had flame-colored hair, and the creamy complexion that so often goes with that color, when it is natural, frank blue eyes, and a generous mouth. Good figure, and held herself well. Costume, good and probably expensive. Good legs in fine silk stockings, and well shod.

Prescott, who liked to classify people into "types," and mentally label them and tuck them away in pigeonholes, found some difficulty in placing her exactly. She certainly was not the type of girl one usually encountered in Soho pubs—in fact, she was hardly the sort of girl you would look for in a pub anywhere—although, of course, all sorts were there today. . . . She might be an actress, or a mannequin. . . . Didn't look like the ordinary type of business girl—a secretary, or anything of that sort. And yet she might be one. Unobtrusively Prescott shifted his position, and edged around a little behind them as they stood by the bar, to try and hear their conversation.

"Well," he heard the girl say, "we'd better go along and see to it, right away!"

An educated, cultured voice, with very clear diction. Prescott inclined more strongly to the actress theory, and felt all the better for being able to do so.

The two finished their drinks, and moved toward the outer door. Prescott's quick eyes had already noted an inner one, which led to the lavatory, via a passage into which other bars opened.

He made for this, and finally emerged from the door of the private bar adjoining, just as a taxi drew up to the curb where the two were standing, not a couple of yards away from him.

He heard the man give the driver his directions:

"Brixton road. Stop at the corner of Angel road." He spoke almost perfect English, but so carefully as to suggest the foreigner. "Angel road?" queried the driver. "That's by the White Horse, isn't it?"

The man hesitated and looked inquiringly at the girl. Evidently he didn't know the geography of the Brixton road, but he anticipated that she would.

"Just past it," she said briefly.

They got in and drove off, without a glance in the direction of Prescott. A bit of luck, hearing their destination like that—saved a lot of trouble.

Prescott walked quickly along the street, surveying the empty taxis he encountered with a critical eye. At last he saw the one he wanted, and hailed it.

"Corner of Angel road, Brixton road," he directed. "And double fare if you break all records!" "See you!" said the driver, who was a youngish man. "You just watch me splinter 'em!"

They started off. Prescott noticed the maneuvers of his driver with approval. He had both speed and cunning, and saved a couple of hundred yards or more by the judicious use of side streets. Half-way along the Kennington road, Prescott, who had a memory for such things, saw the number of a taxi ahead of them; he leaned well back in his own as it passed it. Then he lit another cigarette. 'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and soon away to the post, there to meet Frank Lynch and Dr. Shane and to receive a postcard from Earl Smith, who reported good fishing and a fine vacation up on Lake Nipissing. Learned that Bud Harden and Jim Stout had celebrated birth anniversaries on the same day during the week and also learned of the time Sam Fohl went to the country to sell a Chevrolet to a farmer. The farmer wished to include a cow in the trade-in. Sam knew nothing about cattle, but thought it necessary that he pretend knowledge. So, he looked in the cow's mouth, turned to the farmer and said: "Can't take her. She's too old. Don't have a single tooth in her upper jaw."

There goes Harry Weill and his utility push cart on which he has a printed sign reading, "No Passengers." Recalled the Plymouth premier which I had attended the day before in Columbus as a guest of Jim Stout. Saw the 1941 model, which is truly a honey, and viewed two extremely interesting movies showing how the cars are made. Every year cars get better and better always leaving one wondering how so much can be given for the money.

Cranked my own wagon and headed for the State Fair in Columbus, having forgotten my vow of four years ago that I would never return there. A big event that almost always arouses my ire because of the absolute impossibility to obtain information anywhere to the location of exhibits I particularly wish to see. I walk myself ragged there. Seems to me that competent persons could be installed in the information booths and that the special police at least be advised that the fair is in the great state of Ohio.

Couldn't help but notice the difference in appearance of people there and at our Pumpkin Show. Here they appear happy, and at Columbus almost everyone I saw looked as though his feet hurt and he had eaten too many hot dogs.

Just my luck to not be able to attend before Friday and about all I saw of the exhibits was as they were being loaded on trucks for removal. If the fair is supposed to continue over Friday why is removal of exhibits permitted. One thing I noticed, the concessions all remained, even doing business in the rain that fell so generously in the mid-afternoon.

Attended the horse show at night and saw as fine saddle stock as ever has paraded within my view. Some of the horses got terrible rides from owners who should confine their riding to automobiles, but the horses were grand. Particularly liked the hunters. Jumping horses always thrill me. They get so much fun out of taking the hurdles. Glimpsed the fireworks and then returned home about midnight, tired and certain that I am through with State Fairs and today also certain that I will forget that certainly sooner or later.

Recital Arranged Next Thursday Holds Interest

Metta M. Hickman,
Others Appear
At Chapel

Miss Metta Mae Hickman of Walnut Township will be presented and assisted by her instructor, Betty Scothern Dunkel, of New Holland in a two-violin recital at 8:15 p. m. Thursday in the Hedges Chapel Methodist Church, near Ashville.

Miss Elizabeth Ellen Reber, whose lovely soprano voice has been heard frequently in the community, will be assisting vocalist. Helen Plum Cromley, widely known pianist of Walnut Township, will accompany all numbers.

Miss Hickman, who is eighteen years old, has studied with Mrs. Dunkel exclusively, being her pupil for the last six years. She is the young teacher's first pupil to appear in separate recital.

When Miss Hickman was graduated last May from Walnut Township High School, she played a lengthy and difficult solo for the commencement program. It is a matter of pride with her that she has never used music in a public solo appearance.

She was presented a medal on graduation night in recognition of her outstanding musical ability. Miss Hickman also plays the piano, and was chosen soloist for the all-county high school chorus in 1939.

Mrs. Dunkel is highly pleased that Miss Hickman, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Sark, has chosen to continue her studies this fall at the Capital University Conservatory of Music, this being Mrs. Dunkel's alma mater.

The program for the recital follows:

Little Symphony 1. Danda, Miss Hickman and Mrs. Dunkel.

Serenade (Through the Leaves), by Schubert, Le Secret, by Gantier, Miss Hickman and Mrs. Dunkel.

The Crying of the Water, by Campbell-Tipton, Moon-Marketing, by Weaver, Ah, Love, But a Day, by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Miss Reber.

Der Sohn Der Haide, by Beia, Miss Hickman.

Viennese Popular Song (The Old Refrain), by Kreisler, arranged by Biederman, Gavotte, by Gosic, Miss Hickman and Mrs. Dunkel.

In My Garden, by Firestone, Morning, by Speaks, Miss Reber.

Hungary (From Foreign Lands), by Moszkowski, Miss Hickman and Mrs. Dunkel.

Boggs of that city announced plans for their wedding which was to take place Saturday at 1:45 o'clock. The informal ceremony was to be at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. Paul Kaefer, 221 East Gates Street.

Miss Hirschmann chose a simple costume of soldier blue crepe, navy blue velvet hat and navy accessories, for her wedding, her corsage being of white gardenias, white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Hirschmann named Miss Ann Winnestaffer as her only attendant. She chose a navy blue ensemble with a large picture hat for the wedding, her flowers being pink roses.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,

O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Is it true that the hardy phlox should not be watered in the evening? M. M., Columbus.

ANSWER: Possibly the theory back of withholding water from the phlox foliage in the evening is that it might induce the development of mildew on the foliage. Actually, most of the difficulty that we have with phlox in Ohio is not so much due to mildew as to lack of suffi-cient soil moisture, possibly combined with relatively high tempera-tures. As you go farther north, you will find that even though there may be no more moisture, the hardy phlox is very much bet-ter.

QUESTION: My white narcis-sus almost flatly refused to bloom. I have heard others complain about it although I have seen some gorgeous beds of them. Do you suppose the latter were of a different variety? Can you sug-gest a remedy for my sulking ones?

ANSWER: The ordinary white flowered narcissus of such varieties as Peter Barr, Mrs. Bodger, Eva, and others, are usually just as free blooming as the yellow narcissus. However, if you refer to the double varieties, it is quite a different story. Throughout a considerable part of this country, both the double varieties common-ly grown, the early Phoenix and the late fragrant, Odorata alba plena, ordinarily cannot be de-pended upon to bloom. I find that in my own garden, they will usually bloom the first year I plant them, but after that they are very uncertain. However, some that I have in a back corner where the ground is very wet bloom much better than those with normal moisture.

QUESTION: Along with every-one else, I fight my lawn every year. In desperation I seeded white clover in with the bluegrass in the back lawn where there was much crab grass. It won't do to fertilize that with ammonium sulfate will it? What is this com-plete fertilizer you mention?

ANSWER: White clover is often recommended for those lawns that receive little or no fertilization be-cause the clover, like all legumes, is able to take the nitrogen from the atmosphere and make use of it. There is no reason why ammonium sulfate could not be ap-plied to the clover except that there is usually sufficient nitro-gen there. It would be very much better to apply a complete com-mercial fertilizer containing nitro-gen, phosphorus, and potash. In-cidentally, liberal applications of phosphate will encourage and pro-mote the growth of clover. May I say for you and others who need this one general bit of advice, usu-ally the folks who have the greatest difficulty with their lawns are those who are attempt-ing to grow grass on relatively poor soil. If more home owners would realize the value of ade-quate preparation of the soil be-fore they sow grass seed or before they sod, many of our lawn diffi-culties would be eliminated. Al-though a six-inch layer of top soil would be valuable, it is often dif-ficult or impossible to obtain. Fall sowing of winter wheat or rye to be spaded into the ground in the spring, followed by late spring sowing of soybeans to be spaded or plowed under when they are a foot high will make the most impossible clay subsoil into a surprisingly good top soil. This, of course, would have to be fer-tilized with the material I have suggested above. Everyone inter-ested should obtain a copy of our extension bulletin on lawns from his county agricultural agent. This contains the latest informa-tion on this subject.

QUESTION: I have some young regal lily seedlings. Should I move them in the spring or fall? Do they need sun or shade? Do they need any special soil or treatment? How deep should they be planted? Mrs. L. R., White Hall, Ill.

ANSWER: Lily seedlings of any kind will do best in a fairly loose garden loam. You may leave them where they are, you may store them over winter in a cold frame, or transplant them to a more permanent bed. In any case they should be mulched with leaves or straw over winter. Small bulbs should not be planted over two inches in depth.

QUESTION: Please suggest in-teresting terminals for garden paths. I have a square garden with four grass paths at right angles. When I get to the end of the path I want something worth-while there. It is a small garden about 40 by 75 feet.

ANSWER: Possible terminals for garden paths or other garden axes might include a bird bath, sun dial, a garden seat, an arbor or pergola, a vine-covered arch with a gate, a clump or even a single specimen evergreen or an outstanding shrub or small tree such as the alternate leaved dog-wood, the Japanese snowball, or the blue leaved honeysuckle, Loni-cera korolkowi.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NOT IN THE BOOKS

IF YOU lead against No Trump a suit which is so long you expect your partner to have no more than a singleton in it, you will usually fare better by leading some high honor, even if you don't hold honors in sequence. This is especially true when you have the ace and queen, with or without the 10. Leading a fourth-best in this case is likely to present the de-cclarer a trick with the jack which he could not get if you opened one of the top honors. This is not to be found in the general run of bridge books, but it is a principle of play understood by some of the best players

North 3-Spades and South 3 No Trumps. At this first table South made his contract and later twi-gled the other declarer for failing. "What lead did you get?" asked the beaten man. His tormentor answered "The six of hearts." That is the standard lead pre-scribed by the usual book from such a combination, but it made this contract easy for South. He took the trick with dummy's jack, scored three high spades, lost the club finesse also lost to the heart A, won with the heart K, then ran four tricks in the minors.

At the other table West led the heart Q. With either this lead or the A, it is impossible for South to have more than one stopper in the suit, therefore no earthly way to keep from going down at least two tricks.

Your Week-End Problem
In match-point duplicate play, would you make an opening bid on any of these hands in fourth po-sition after three passes and, if so, why? Would you open any of them in the same position at rub-ber bridge?

That same bidding, with one slight variation, occurred at another table of the duplicate game where this hand was dealt. In that instance, South bid only 2-No Trumps on his third turn, then

For Sunday, September 1

SUNDAY's horoscope is an excellent one for religious, mystical, humanitarian and kindred pursuits, with the prospect of romance, social adventure and attachments of an unconventional or irregular aspect having full swing. But it is likely that this may bring grief, calamity or regret if not discreetly handled.

Those whose birthday it is may have an exciting and dramatic year, with many peculiar or intriguing adventures, gainful and benefic if managed with discretion, but perilous and devastating if rushed into precipitately and rashly. Social and romantic activities may be paramount to business or ordinary interests.

A child born on this day may be active and dynamic, possibly in some unusual or spectacular way. It should be original, ingenious, artistic and genial.

Tin Story

Here are the latest facts in this tremendously important tin story: 1. The United States is on the point of signing a contract with one or more American metal firms to establish tin smelting in this country.

2. Bolivia is ready to sign a contract to deliver metallic tin to the equivalent of 1,000 tons per month.

3. Van den Broeke declares the readiness of the Dutch Government to deliver 2,000 tons a month from the Dutch East Indies.

4. Grace Lines are ready to reduce freight rates on tin ore from Bolivia to the United States.

Behind all this is a tangled skein of conflicting interests. Patino, the Bolivian, is worried that his government is playing a close game with his rival, Hochschild, the Argentine. Van den Broeke, the Hollander, would like to set up a smeltery with Patino, but insist that he should control it, since he would supply more ore.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Government sits back, dicker over prices. Out of all this frenzied activity, there can be no doubt that a smelting industry will be established here. But the long-range question remains

300 COUNTIANS TO ATTEND BIG FARM MEETING

September 17 To Attract Many To Fairgrounds; Barbecue Planned

50 FLOATS EXPECTED

20 Prime Steers Will Be Prepared For Serving To Visitors

The largest barbecue ever to be prepared and served in Ohio will be one of the features of the second annual Farm Bureau Field Day to be held at the Ohio State Fairgrounds, Tuesday, September 17. Local Farm Bureau officials estimate that more than 300 Pickaway county farmers will attend. James R. Moore, chairman of the general arrangements committee for the event, has announced that 20 prime steers and 45,000 buns are part of the supplies that will be required to serve lunch to 20,000 persons during the noon hour, at a rate of five a second.

A pit 90 feet long, five feet wide, and three feet deep will be dug for the barbecue. Twenty-five cords of wood will be used to fire the pit. Ten "carving stations" with ten expert carvers, and 100 attendants will make and serve the sandwiches.

FLOATS, BANDS APPEAR

Floater, service trucks, bands and marching delegations of county organizations from all parts of the state are expected to be a feature of the morning program. More than 50 floats are expected, with county and state Farm Bureau sharing expense in the construction. Ten county Farm Bureau bands will constitute a part of the parade, to be held on the race track in front of the grandstand.

The afternoon program to be held in the Fairgrounds Coliseum will be devoted to speaking, entertainment and the awarding of service prizes. Principal speakers for the program will be announced later.

Exhibits in the Coliseum will include displays of farm machinery, electrical equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, paint, roofing, fence, petroleum, insecticides, small farm tools, coal, insurance services, educational activities, steel products, auto accessories, finance and legislative service.

Many of the Farm Bureau offices and stores will be closed September 17, although the Pickaway County office has not yet announced that it would close for the occasion.

Harness Races Canceled A muddy track forced cancellation of the final harness races and rain also spoiled a gigantic show scheduled last night for the finale of the fair.

Rain, however, did not cut into the affairs of the 4-H Club contests and other judging activities.

As the feature of the 4-H Club program at the fair, Beulah Stutzman, 17, of Bryan, Williams County and Tom Wiley, 17, Ashland were selected the healthiest 4-H Club girl and boy at the fair. The Ashland youth piled up 985 points out of a possible 1000 while Dickinson Ban Schoick, of Hilliards, was second with a score of 984.

The girl's division, there was a tie for second place with Louise Sintoben, 17, of Wauseon, and Virginia Reddin, of Bloomdale, Wood County, scoring 949 points apiece. Third place in the boy's division went to 18-year old Robert Stewart, of St. Clairsville.

The winners will receive a free trip to the National Health Contest in Chicago in December in connection with the national 4-H Club convention.

Union Countian Champion Living up to his name, Nathan Shearer, of Byhalia, Union County, bested a large field to win the grand champion sheep shearing contest. HOUSE MAY KILL GERMAN PLANES INDUSTRY RIDER IN DRAFT BILL

8:30 a. m. (2:30 a. m. EST) and the all-clear about 36 minutes later.

While these warnings were in force, London heard a report that four German bombers had been shot down while making morning attacks against the southeastern coast.

Shortly after 11 a. m. also, it was reported that German planes had penetrated near a southeastern inland town.

Today's furious aerial warfare followed a six hour and 40 minutes pounding of London inflicted by some 50 German raiders during the night and early this morning.

The British Press Association said that in this night attack eight fatalities were reported in the London area.

Some Trapped In Home The agency also said it was believed that a number of persons were still trapped in a nursing home in one district which suffered minor damage from incendiary bombs.

Correspondents and reporters who examined outlying districts of the London region reported that some of them suffered "very heavy" as a result of the night raid.

Here and there, they said, there were fatalities among the casualties.

They reported that rows of houses were shattered and that piles of rubble were dotted about the attack districts, where they saw bomb craters 30 feet in diameter and 10 feet deep.

Most of these reports ended with the words:

"It is feared there are other casualties."

In some sections houses were demolished and in others streets were strewn with glass and tile.

But although the damage to London itself appeared heavier than that resulting from any previous raids, authorities said, not a single military objective appeared to have been hit.

One eye-witness, A. W. Rossiter, told of streets inches deep in glass, with not a single store in the 500-yard long shopping center still retaining unbroken windows.

In this particular region, said Rossiter, some houses were demolished and many were damaged and railroad service was temporarily disrupted.

Rescue Goes On Rescue parties were still searching through the debris of wrecked homes in the belief that residents were trapped.

Rossiter reported that one bomb fell in the center of one street, setting fire to a gas main, while another broke a water main.

A number of bombs straddled this district and this morning police were hard at work helping civilians rescue dust-covered planes and other valuable household effects from damaged homes.

A reporter in another London district told how the German raiders ineffectually sought out some marshalling yards but succeeded only in bombing working class street. For areas a quarter of a mile long these thoroughfares were littered with broken glass.

Assisted by children with brushes and dustpans, householders in this district were hard at work sweeping the glass into neat piles for disposal.

All over the city children were spending their spare time looking for shrapnel and cartridge cases and even this morning's two alarms failed to halt this youthful search for prized souvenirs.

Only when the echo of distant gunfire was carried over the still summer-like air did the youngsters begin to think about taking shelter.

Newspaper warnings of the danger of treating alarms casually and the city's experiences last night failed to disturb Londoners, thousands of whom spurned air over in waves at about 20-minute intervals, flying under a star-lit sky at tremendous altitudes. Searchlight batteries busily stabbed the blackness, searching for the raiders.

About 10 minutes before the alarm sounded, the approaching planes dropped a few flares. Violent anti-aircraft fire broke out at once some distance west of Berlin.

As the raiders came closer the ground batteries increased their barrages. The planes were then still invisible, but watchers in Berlin saw parachute flares drop from time to time.

The anti-aircraft fire was heaviest to the west and northwest of the capital.

But later it appeared that the raiders as on their first attack concentrated their raid on the southeast section of the city in the region of Kottbuserstrasse, where flame and smoke quickly appeared.

Frequently the roaring motors of the British planes were plainly audible. Once they seemed to swoop low over the capital in an effort to break loose from the searchlight beams.

All Stay in Shelters During the raid virtually all Berliners remained in their cellars for shelter. The city was quiet but immediately after the all-clear sounded, night traffic resumed its regular schedule.

A single bomb exploded on the Tempelhof airport, Europe's largest, digging a crater but failing to touch the hangars, airport buildings or planes.

Five roof fires were caused by incendiaries dropped by the first wave of raiders. In addition a high explosive bomb landed on the Berlin fire department headquarters, wrecking the building's windows.

Another exploded on the roof of the Reich medical administrative building nearby, wrecking the two top floors and littering the courtyard with debris.

Several duds or time-bombs were believed to have landed in that area.

In two other streets in the same section a bomb exploded in the open roadway, damaging an apartment house and a school and knocking down a gas lamp.

On a corner of Alexandrine-strasse, several incendiary and explosive bombs set fire to a factory behind an apartment house. Red smoke shot skyward.

In Diefenbachstrasse in the same region incendiaries set fire to an apartment house and part of a hospital. Smoke poured in a great column from the roofs.

On another corner of the same street bombs crashed into the roof of a Protestant Church and started a fire in the choir stalls. Some benches and part of the floor were burned.

Another bomb landed in front of the altar but this fire was quickly extinguished.

In the northwestern section of Berlin a bomb exploded in a cemetery, damaging gravestones.

Saxophone, Born In 1840, Brought Fame But Also Bankruptcy To Inventor

NEW YORK, August 31—Invented by accident, frequently misspelled and scorned as a symbol of the Jazz Age, the saxophone, now, in its centennial year, is acquiring respectability.

It was just one hundred years ago... 1940 in Brussels, Belgium... that Adolphe Joseph "Adolphe" Sax, one of Charles Sax's 11 children, invented the instrument that still carries the family name.

Today, the saxophone is emerging from the "lowbrow" estimate once given it by the public.

The Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco and Chicago symphony orchestras and other distinguished classical music groups have acquired saxophone sections. Indeed, many of the high school boys of the 1920's discovered that only a virtuoso can produce the unusually beautiful tonal colorings possible on the strange-shaped instrument that bridges the gap between the older "reed" instruments and the "brasses."

Sax For Popular Music However, while there is little serious music for the saxophone, there is plenty of the popular kind, thanks to the flexibility of Sax's conical brass tube that features a score of orifices covered by leather-padded keys.

More than 40 "name" band leaders are popular on the sax and have toiled themselves to fame and fortune on a crescendo of harmonic overtones so necessary to sustain a band's full "brass."

Popular maestros such as Paul Whiteman and Guy Lombardo feature strong "sax" sections.

Many an old-timer remembers the magic of the Brown brothers and of the late Rudy Wiedoft on the saxophone. Their skill truly educated the nation to the wide range of tonal beauty obtainable on the hook-shaped horn.

Among current favorites on the sax are Dick Stabile, Toots Mondello, and Jimmy Dorsey on the alto, and Charlie Barnet, Tony Pastor, Georgie Auld and Coleman Hawkins on the tenor. These and an estimated 100,000 other band-saxophone players keep the saxophone industry busy.

How Sax Was Invented Sax was experimenting with the ophicleide and substituted a cup-shaped mouthpiece (such as is used on a trumpet) for a clarinet mouthpiece. He was amazed to hear his "accident" produce a blended sound of reed and brass.

A few alterations were made and Sax produced a whole family of saxophones with their rare quality of tone resembling strings and the human voice. This quality makes it a favorite solo instrument.

Sax discovered a fundamental law of acoustics: The tone (ring) of a sound is determined by the air by those of the body of the proportions given the column of instrument which holds it.

Although the hybrid saxophone was hailed by Sax's contemporaries such as Composers Rossini, Berlioz and Halevy, many austere "artists" rejected the instrument; it was in spite of the acclaim given it by scores of newspaper writers who foresaw the adaptability of the instrument to army band uses. Enemies of Sax

Though his fame spread across the nation, and his magnificent shop in Rue St. Georges, Paris, continually expanded, Sax could not stem the opposition of his competitors and eventually went bankrupt despite his winning medals in French musical instrument exhibitions.

However, after a special competition in which 45 musicians played old-style horns and 38 played the saxophone, the latter instrument was officially adopted by the French army band July 31, 1945, and Sax—so his friends thought—surely now would make a fortune.

Now Sax's business competitors who feared the popularity of his new instrument would destroy them set about to strip him of everything, even trying to discredit his right to the invention on the grounds that he was merely a sly promoter taking advantage of another's idea.

Through court after court the case was dragged for 30 years but he continued the struggle. A man of imposing stature and broad forehead, his frankly open eyes sparkled with fire from an inner zeal. Snatched from death a dozen time—by poisoning, by drowning, by explosion—his trail followed a prediction made by his mother, after a youthful accident: "My child is pledged to misfortune."

Bankrupt, At Last In 1859, when the pitch was changed, every orchestra and military band had to get new wind instruments but Sax, still bitterly opposed by his competitors and lacking in sharp-witted business experience, again found himself involved with the law. In December, 1877, bankrupt, Sax was forced to quit his establishment in Rue St. Georges and sell his collection of musical instruments.

All his life Sax tinkered with inventions and in 1945 took out a patent on the saxhorn and the saxotrombas. Indeed, at the London International exhibition in 1862 he was represented by cornets, saxhorns and saxotrombas with three pistons and as many as five keys.

But the saxophone remained Adolphe Sax's most important discovery. He died in poverty at Paris, Feb. 4, 1894.
